Three moves, each with a finish line

01

Write down one recent piece of work that shows Kubernetes.

cloud DevOps engineer postings ask for it most often among the skills you confirmed.

Done when: You have a two-line example with a result you could say in an interview.

02

Build one small piece of proof for Security.

It appears in 17% of cloud DevOps engineer postings in Germany and is not in your confirmed profile.

Done when: You can describe or show a result that uses Security.

03

Apply to Senior DevOps Engineer (m/w/d) at hyrUP GmbH \(senior\) and Freelancer (Senior) DevOps Engineer (m/w/d), Hamburg at iVentureGroup \(senior\).

Of the cloud DevOps engineer postings open now in Germany, these are the two you fit best: you have 12 of the 15 and 10 of the 13 skills listed. Real postings are the fastest test of whether this direction is open to you.

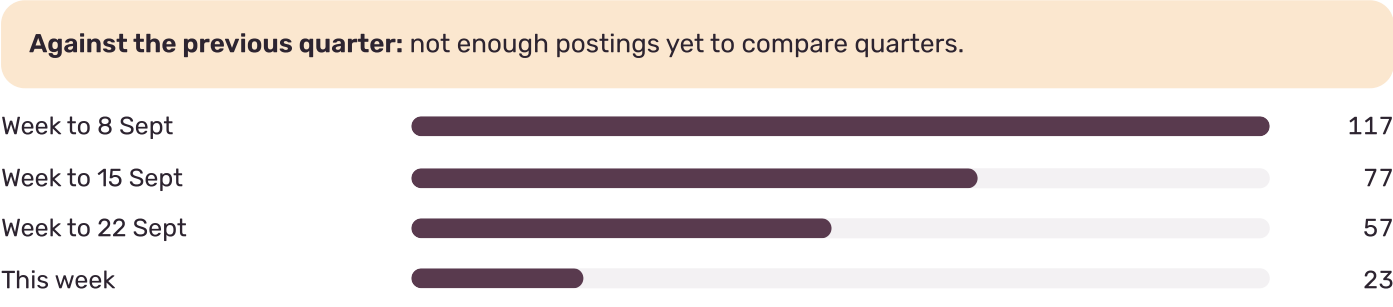

Done when: After ten applications or four weeks: continue if at least one led to a reply; otherwise revisit the gaps above or try the next direction.

Postings published 2025-09-01..2026-08-31 whose title matched exactly one occupation in the MisuJob taxonomy and that list skills; country DE, or all countries where DE has too few.

Postings with the same content fingerprint are counted once per month and scope.

- Only postings whose title clearly names one role are counted, so every figure is about that role in Germany.

Limits

- What postings ask for is what employers write in them, not a survey of people in the job.
- Counts include postings whose title clearly names one role, so each number is about this role and not a mix of roles.
- A skill missing from your profile is something to confirm, not proof that you lack it.
- Salaries are the ones employers state; nothing here predicts interviews or offers.
